Examination Of Students Not Compulsory

April 14, 1926.

Editor,
Richmond Record-Herald
Richmond, California.
Dear Sir:

In your valuable publication of April 10, an article appears pertaining to pre-school examination of children, which states that "The law requires that all children entering school for the first time be examined to determine whether or not they are physically fit," etc.

This statement, which is incorrect, as no such law exists in California, has caused much comment and considerable perturbation among your readers.

There is no law in California, requiring school children and those about to enter school for the first time, to be physically examined in any way. Under 1618A of the political code it provides "that a parent or guardian having control or charge of any child enrolled in the public schools in which he is enrolled, a statement in writing, signed by such parent or guardian, stating that he will not consent to the physical examination of his child, and thereupon such child shall be exempt from any physical examination."

The manual in "Health Supervision and Instruction" for the elementary schools, compiled by the State Board of Education, states: "Both the letter and spirit of this statute should be most carefully observed."

State medicine has not been established in California and there is no compulsory physical examination law.

The State Board of Education has ruled that: "School trustees are responsible for the welfare of the children while they are at school. They must exercise due diligence in caring for these children. If they permit any individual to give medical treatment to the children while they are at school, the trustees are responsible for any consequences." The ruling further states that "the matter of physical examination of children in the public schools is one to be seriously considered by the school authorities. Parents send their children to school to be educated and no regulations should be adopted, except in strictly school matters, as will cause parents to be reluctant to send their children to the public schools."

This statement coming from the state superintendent of public schools, should correct any misapprehension on the part of school trustees and school employees with respect to compulsory physical examination.

Parents in California under the state law have the right to decide what treatment they may desire for their children and they also have the privilege of making that decision regarding physical examination of children of pre-school age.

It would be a serious matter if the public schools, which are supported by the tax payers, should be dominated or controlled by any one system of healing and such a procedure would in a short time result in thousands of parents seeking education for their children in private schools.

Physical examination, medical treatment, vaccination, inoculation and other treatment is a question which the parent has the right to decide for himself and no law exists on the statute books which would empower anyone, in or out of school to a specified form of (Continued on Page 6).

CHINESE STRIFE KEPT ALIVE BY MONARCHISTS AND LIBERALS

Modernism and Old China at Stake in Civil War Now Raging in That Nation

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, April 15.—What does the struggle now going on around Peking signify? Is it part of a really ambitious general for control of the nation's capital? The Europeans and Japanese, in order to gain their own ends in China, wish us to believe the Chinese incapable of self-government. With few exceptions, they insist that the past and present fighting means nothing more than a struggle for power between rival generals. The Chinese who have been taught to believe that America is always friendly to struggling peoples insist that the primary cause of the civil war is the enmity which exists between Chinese Liberals and Chinese Conservatives. They readily admit that the personal ambitions of generals enter into the situation. They also insist that foreign aid extended to some of the generals in return for past favors and favors to come, is a serious factor.

An examination of the past history of the present leaders and parties to which they belong show the Chinese contention to be correct. Even prior to the overthrow of the monarchy by the revolution of 1911, the governing forces in Chinese internal affairs have been the Liberals who wished to modernize and democratize China (Continued on Page 8)

MAUNA LOA IS AGAIN ACTIVE

(By Universal Service)
HONOLULU, T. H., April 15.—Mauna Loa was overtopped by lava again today, the second time in a week. The activity started last night at a high elevation on the Kilauea slope of the great crater. Lava rivers were plainly visible today to watchers at a considerable distance owing to the clear atmosphere. After following a sweeping curve to the right the flow veered shortly after midnight and headed directly toward the sea. Providing the flow continues observers expect it to reach the ocean within thirty six hours. Rumbles within Kilauea, neighboring volcano, continue but no lava flow from that crater has been reported.

President Is About Again After Slight Attack of Cold

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, April 15.—An attack of indigestion, complicated by a slight cold, put President Coolidge to bed for a few hours today after he had kept a series of appointments at the executive office. Against the advice of Mrs. Coolidge, the Chief Executive insisted on going to his office in the morning. After two hours, however, he cancelled the remainder of his engagements, returned to the executive mansion, and went to bed. About the middle of the afternoon, the President was up again, and took a walk about the White House grounds with Rob. Roy, the giant white collier. He also went to his office and signed the War Department Appropriation Bill.

Attending physicians were inclined to diagnose the President's attack as indigestion, but the Chief Executive felt that the principal trouble was a slight cold.

YESTERDAY WAS BIG BUILDING DAY FOR APRIL

The heaviest day for building permits during the month of April was recorded yesterday, when eight permits, totaling $18,135 were issued by City Building Inspector E. E. Grow.

Five of these permits were for the construction of new dwellings ranging in price from $2,000 to $7,000.

Harold de Normandie, who is at present erecting ten houses in the El Cerrito Terrace section, secured permits to erect three additional houses. These cottages will be similar in construction to the others and will cost $3000 each. Mark Bristol, the builder of the other cottages, will be in charge of construction of the three new cottages.

C. E. Brewen secured a permit to construct a two-story flat on the west side of Nineteenth street between Barrett and Roosevelt avenues. The cost of the construction will be $7,000 and the owner will do the building.

A permit was issued to Andrew B. Montoya to erect a one-story cottage and garage, costing $2000, on the west side of Thirty-fourth street, between Roosevelt and Clinton avenues. S. V. LePore will be in charge of construction.

Minor permits issued totaled $135. Helen Martin secured a permit to build a private garage on the west side of Second street, between Virginia and Maine. The cost will be $60.

A permit was issued to E. C. Bouteille to remodel a two-story apartment house on the west side of Richmond avenue between Washington and Santa Fe avenues. The owner will be in charge of the work, which will cost $25.

G. W. Wallace secured a permit to erect a one-story garage on the south side of Dunn avenue, between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets.

Burbank Leaves Estate to Wife

(By Universal Service)
SANTA ROSA, Cal. 15.—Luther Burbank, world famous plant wizard who died on Sunday last, left his entire estate estimated at $200,000 to his wife, Elizabeth Waters Burbank. It was revealed in Burbank's will which was filed in the Sonoma County Superior Court here today.

Mrs. Burbank was named executor of the estate to serve without bond. The will dated March 20, 1924 directed that all of his just debts be paid.

While attorneys Geary and Geary who filed the will for probate stated that Burbank's estate was "in excess of $100,000," they stated that the late plant wizard's properties and stock and bonds would total $200,000.

Neither Burbank's sister nor his little niece who made her home with the Burbanks was mentioned in the will.

LOSES DRIVERS LICENSE
James Earley, of Berkeley, was fined $20 and his operators license suspended for thirty days, when he appeared before Judge C. A. Odell to answer to a charge of speeding. He is said to have been traveling at the rate of forty-seven miles per hour within the city limits.

ARGUMENTS OF WEBS BEFORE SENATE GROUP ARE FINISHED

Those in Favor of Present Law Are To Be Heard Before Senate Committee Today

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, April 15.—Prohibition is transforming the young people into a class of spies, snitches and informers, robbing them of their sense of honor and producing from them a degraded lot who will be of poor service when their country needs men in the next generation, President Samuel Harding Church of Carnegie Institute declared to the Senate committee on Judiciary today.

Climaxing nine days of continuous assault, the wets today brought to a close their demand for modification of the Volstead Act with a series of amazing allegations intended to show the debasing effects of prohibition upon the morals of men, women and children.

That eight-year-old children buy liquor from "candy stores" in Baltimore and that the time once employed by them in outdoor recreation is now passed in washing hooch bottles in their moonshine home was charged by President John G. Callan of the Liberty Defense League of Baltimore.

Representative Marty T. Norton of New Jersey, a warfare veteran of fifteen years experience, declared that wives who once suffered from drunken husbands now bear the abuse of "crazy husbands," who are ruined in health and mentality by the drug habit which prohibition has produced.

Disabled veterans in one government hospital, which she declined for the present to name, have found it necessary to appeal against the bootleggers who dispense vile whiskey in the wards among the invalids, she charged.

General Lincoln C. Andrews, prohibition chief, on the stand today after his declaration for wholesome beer, regulated by the government, to be sold in saloons, declared he had warned his officers not to encourage "neighbors to spy."

BIDS FOR NEW BANK OPENED

Bids for the four story bank building to be constructed at Tenth street and Macdonald avenue were opened yesterday afternoon at the Main office of the Mercantile Trust company.

Due to the number of bids which were submitted and the alternate bids submitted, time did not allow for officials of the company to award the bids yesterday according to the plan. The alternate bids of the bank, which were submitted, will be carefully checked by Monday afternoon and the contracts will be awarded at that time. Construction of the bank is to start in a short time.

Funds Withdrawn From Harbor Here For Toledo Work

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, April 15.—Nearly a half million dollars of funds allotted for the improvement of the harbors of San Francisco and Boston, was withdrawn by Secretary of War Davis today and turned over to work on the harbor of Toledo, Ohio.

Secretary Davis in making this switch explained that the funds would be reallocated to San Francisco and Boston as soon as the new War Department appropriation bill passes Congress. It would not work hardship, he said.

Of the appropriation of $400,000 for rivers and harbors, by the War Department Appropriation Act of Feb. 12, 1925, only $45,740 was allotted to Toledo, it was stated. This sum was sufficient only to maintain the channel in usable condition.

Because of silt deposits, however, it is necessary to begin a vast amount of dredging at once at a cost estimated at $450,000.

As much as the allotments to San Francisco and Boston cannot be applied to San Francisco prior to the passing of the additional appropriation by Congress, the funds were taken from these projects it was stated.

The funds turned over to Toledo construction were:
San Francisco Harbor, $50,000.
Oakland Harbor, $25,000.
San Pablo Bay, Cal., $75,000.
Humboldt Harbor, Cal., $200,000.
Boston Harbor, $115,000.
Total, $465,000.

MARRIAGE LICENSE
A marriage license was issued yesterday in Martinez to Alexander H. S. McGlamery, 25, and Miss Myrtle Spiers, 25, both of Richmond.

Activities for the giant ceremonial celebration of the Sciot tomorrow were announced last night at a meeting of the various committees in charge of arrangements. There will be something doing every minute of the day to entertain the 3,000 visitors who will pour into Richmond from every section of Northern California.

The headquarters will be at the Richmond clubhouse where the out of town Scots will register. An information bureau in charge of Mrs. George Lohr will be located in the clubhouse where a radio concert will be received on a thirteen-tube set furnished by Carl Alexander.

The visitors will be entertained from 3 to 6 o'clock through the courtesy of the chamber of commerce. An automobile tour through the city will include the (Continued on Page 3)

AUTO TOLL 31 IN THIS COUNTY DURING 1925

Contra Costa automobile deaths were 31 during 1925, according to figures upon the automobile death toll compiled by L. E. Ross, chief of the bureau of vital statistics. In ten bay district counties the toll amounted to 408, against 458 in Los Angeles county alone.

The motor vehicle death list for the bay counties follows: San Francisco 115; Alameda, 90; Napa, 14; San Mateo, 19; Santa Cruz, 12; Santa Clara, 69; Solano, 15; Sonoma, 19; Contra Costa, 31; Marin, 9.

Henry McCullough Dies at Hercules

Henry McCullough, 65, a resident of Hercules for the past 30 years, passed away at his home yesterday afternoon. He was a native of Ireland and a resident of California for the past 33 years. He held a position as storekeeper at the Hercules Powder plant.

He is survived by his wife and a son, Dr. J. M. McCullough, a prominent doctor at Crockett. Funeral arrangements are in the hands of Wilson and Kratzer.

Final Session of Sciot Committee To Be Held Tonight

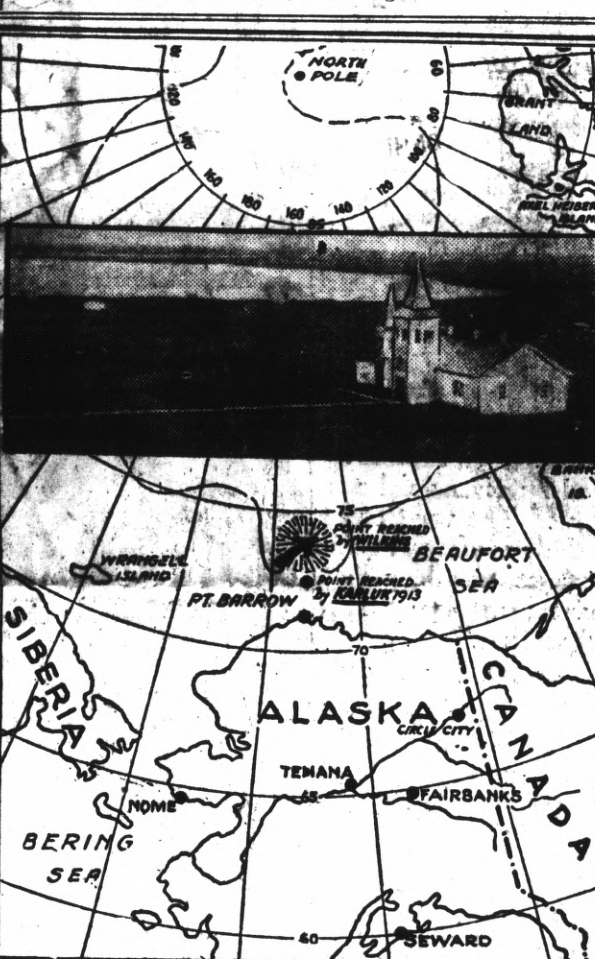

Members of the various committees in charge of arrangements for the Sciot ceremonial tomorrow will meet tonight in the Richmond clubhouse. Toparch George Bengley will preside at the meeting at which final reports of the committees will be made.

A car driven by R. Jackson, of Oakland collided with a car driven by W. F. Flemming of San Francisco, at the intersection of Macdonald and San Pablo avenues last night with slight damage to both cars and none injured.

POINT BARROW, BASE OF WILKINS ARCTIC SEARCH, AND POLAR REGION PENETRATED IN FIRST FLIGHT

Captain Wilkins, head of the Detroit Arctic polar flight, is assembling all his supplies as a base for an aerial dash to the Pole. The photograph shows Point Barrow, its general store and church, the most northerly church on the most northerly spot of the United States. Captain Wilkins and his pilot made an unscheduled flight 140 miles due north from Point Barrow, the last 70 miles over an area never before explored. "We flew through some of the worst country I ever laid eyes on—saw 1000 ranges stretching for miles," said Wilkins. The map indicates the region penetrated in this flight.

Aikin Jury is Expected to Get Case Today

(By Universal Service)
SALINAS, April 15.—The taking of testimony in the trial of Lieutenant Clarence Kennedy Aikin, Fresno cavalry officer, on a burglary charge closed at noon today. There was a brief interlude of ominous silence but this afternoon when Judge Treat's court reconvened, two strangers appeared on the scene.

Their sudden arrival, their mysterious presence, recalls their interest in Lieut. Aikin and in Sergeant Charles Barnes immediately after the pair had been arrested and locked in the Monterey jail last January.

It recalls their statement that they had reopened the investigation into the holdup of a Santa Fe passenger train near Santa Ana a year ago and the brutal murder of the American Railway Express messenger by one of the bandits.

Within 24 hours the jury will have Aikin's fate in its hands to convict him or free him. The betting is that the jury will disagree and that Aikin will get his liberty on a "hung jury."

Plans for Straw Hat Day Progress

Straw hat day will be held here on April 22 by the Better Business Committee of the Merchants Association and all are warned to keep their shrodded wheat debris in the closet underneath the wife's winter coat until this day, for Ward McCracken, who has charge of the events of that day has sworn in a posse of secret ogles who are hunting the wearers of the straw hats.

According to news from a reliable source, the posse discovered councilman George Black sneaking about a dark corner on Nevins avenue last night wearing the newest of straw hats. He was quickly dealt with and the offending "lid" was smashed to pulp. This is a lid hid until April 22 then wear it in glory.

Interest in Trial Shifts From Liquor Charge to Charges Made by Young Officers

(By Universal Service)
SAN DIEGO, April 15.—Brid. Gen. Smedley Darlington Butler's now famous "cocktail party" charges against Col. Alexander S. Williams proved a boomerang today, when Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, president of the General Board, trying the case began a court airing of sensational accusation made against the Brig. Gen. by younger officers.

Determined to learn whether or not General Butler had exerted duress or coercion upon the junior officers in obtaining damaging statements against Colonel Williams, Admiral Washington summoned General Butler before the court this morning. A full explanation was demanded.

The scene that resulted was a stormy one. Official observers were of the opinion that General Butler not only involved himself considerably, but also proved an admirable witness for the defense. General Butler's admission caused wide spread speculation continued (Continued on Page 6).

PROTECTION FIRST

When the thirteen colonies had achieved freedom and set about the establishing of an orderly government through the Constitution, one of the first things this country sought to secure was economic independence by fostering home industry; according to Peter Roman Sterling, who discusses the historical constitutional phases of the protective tariff policy in the current issue of the National Republic under the title "Protection and the United States Constitution."

Protection for American manufactures was one of the chief reasons for the formation and adoption of the Constitution of the United States. There is no end of proof of this assertion," Mr. Sterling says.

"The first bill passed by the First Congress was a tariff bill. While it was being debated, Fisher Ames, of Massachusetts, said: 'I conceive, sir, that the present Constitution was dictated by commercial necessity, more than any other cause. The want of an efficient government to secure the manufacturing interest, and to advance our commerce, was long seen by men of judgment, and pointed out by patriots solicitous to promote our general welfare.'

"Daniel Webster, student and expounder of the Constitution, in a speech at Buffalo, N. Y., in 1833, said: 'The protection of American labor against the injurious competition of foreign labor, so far, at least, as respects general handicraft productions, is known historically to have been one end designed to be obtained by establishing the Constitution.'

"Rufus Choate, while discussing 'the power and duty of Congress to continue the policy of protecting American labor,' in the senate in 1842, said: 'A whole people, a whole generation of our fathers, had in view as one grand end and purpose of their new government, the acquisition of the means of restraining, by governmental action the importation of foreign manufactures, for the encouragement of manufactures and of labor at home, and desired and meant to do this by clothing the new government with this specific power of regulating commerce.'

BUILDING

The Department of Commerce has estimated that over eight billion dollars will be spent in 1926 in building operations. An interesting feature of this estimate is the number of rural buildings which are planned for erection. While it is true that the total of expenditures for these buildings is quite modest in comparison with expenditures for industrial plants and buildings in the large cities, it is a matter of satisfaction that the expenditures planned for rural structures and homes surpasses all records in the past.

Out of this total expenditure of eight billion, over three billion dollars will be paid directly as wages to the workmen employer on the same. In addition, we might count in, although no estimate has been made, the workmen in the building supplies and other lines who will also undoubtedly receive at least another two billion of wages out of the five billion for material. With figures like this at hand, the plain common garden variety of citizen can continue to plan on sending his boys and girls to college and ignore the fictitious slump of values on Wall Street in New York.

The states of New York and Massachusetts are quarreling about who owns the land at the bottom of Lake Ontario. Let Florida have it and it will be laid out in building lots inside of three weeks.

Some Pages from American History

By VICTOR MORGAN

THE INFLUENCE OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

In choosing Colonel Washington for the command of the American forces, John Adams and the other New Englanders who acted with him had meant not only to secure the services of the most experienced soldier in America, but also, by taking a man out of the South, to give obvious proof of the union and cooperation of the colonies. They had chosen better than they knew Washington was without question a man of honor and breeding, and as the enemies had considered his army a mere rowdy assemblage of rebels it was no small matter to have such a leader. But Washington, with his pride of breeding, his schooling in conduct and privilege, his notions of authority, was far from pleased until he began to see below the surface, with the disorderly array of uncouth boys and men he found with their free-and-easy manners and their half-indifferent insolence against authority or discipline.

Now many a man of wealth and of old lineage had identified himself with the popular cause, but new, unseasoned men were very numerous and prominent among those who had turned affairs down; hence it is not surprising that a very great number of the best and oldest families of the colony had shown sympathy with the government. And so the high personal reputation and aristocratic distinction of George Washington made him a most fortunate choice for commander. People did not so readily despise a cause which men like Washington and his associates stood willing to fight for.

Washington was forty-three at this time, and his energy was imperative and infectious. He wrote urgent, explicit, business-like letters to every man of influence and every colonial committee or assembly from whom aid could come. And the response was immediate and gratifying.

A PARIS FAVORITE

Smart women like this model for daytime wear, for it may be developed either in the silk crepes, crepe satins, or fine twills. The dress has an open front filled with a vestee of self-material and a turn-down collar held together with a colorful tie-string. Turn-back cuffs finish the long sleeves, and the skirt is composed of two deep flounces. Medium size requires 3½ yards 40-inch material.

LESSON IN HOME DRESSMAKING

Bodice Skirt with Fashionable Plaited Effect in Front, to Wear with Sports or Costume Blouses

New Skirt Model

FASHION has given the separate skirt a permanent place in the mode, therefore it must show continual variety to retain the interest of well-dressed women. The latest accented note is the plaited front, there being a number of very smart arrangements of plaits below the hips. The skirt pictured has an inserted section in the front which is laid in plaits, the upper edge being gathered so that it may be attached either to a belt or a bodice.

Without the bodice medium size requires 2 yards 40-inch material. For the bodice ¾ yard of 36-inch lining must be added. Without the bodice one will require from ¾ to 1½ yard of belting for the stay.

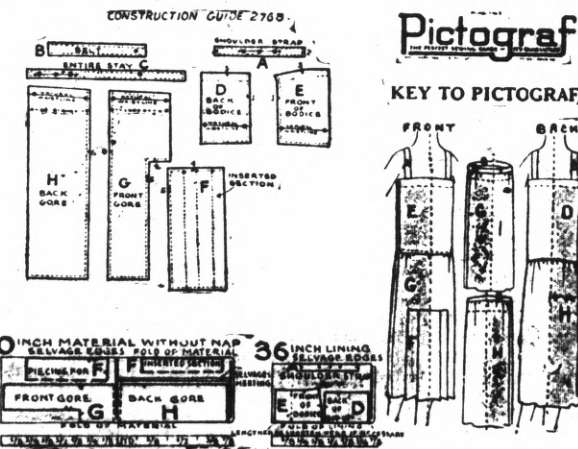

The front and back gores of the skirt are cut along the lengthwise fold of material, leaving enough material at either side of the gores for the plaited section. This is cut on a lengthwise thread of the goods. The bodice has both front and back cut along the lengthwise fold of material. The straps may be of lingerie tape, ribbon or self-material.

To make the bodice, close the right under-arm seam and finish left side for closing. Then sew shoulder strap underneath the hem. Take section F next, and turn backward-turning plaits, baste and press. Sew plaited section in front of gore G with center fronts and lower edges even. Join gores G and H, leaving left side edges free above lower large perforation. Finish free edges for placket. Gather upper edge and either adjust stay to position or attach the skirt to the bodice.

Why Girls Go Back Home

CATHARINE BRODY

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Clifford Dudley, matinee idol, receives his boredom while "touring the sticks" by flirting with a remarkably pretty country girl, Marie Downey. As innocent as pretty, Marie thinks that because Clifford kissed her they have thus become engaged, and naively follows him to New York. Clifford realizes he is in hot water and stily figures on ways and means to get rid of Marie. Sally Short, an actress, takes Marie under her wing and gets her a chorus girl job.

And Marie had gained a faint city pallor; there was a wanness to the outline of her face and a languor in her eyes which did not brighten at the lights of Broadway or the theatre, or at the feverish excitement of light living and flush spending which the very streets of this part of the city near Times Square exhaled. They never brightened, in fact, except at some mention of Clifford's name. "Homesick and lovesick," was Sally's diagnosis.

Now, as always, Marie's eyes shone with a renewal of the old wide eyed interest. She stretched her hands across the tea wagon, on which they had spread miscellaneous vands, to be eaten miscellaneous after the manner of women dining alone, and grabbed the paper.

"Let's see. Oh, I'm so very glad for him."

She read aloud proudly: "The popular Mr. Clifford Dudley met with high favor last night in a new play called 'His Own.' This should set him in the first ranks of matinee idols. In spite of our current prejudice against such idols, even we must admit that Mr. Dudley is apart and beyond a fine actor. 'Yeh, I know,' cut in Sally impatiently, 'I read it. Blah-blah!' "Oh, Sally," reproached Marie. The light faded from her eyes as she continued thoughtfully: "He hasn't called me in—more than a week, not even to say hello. But, of course, I know he's been busy and he's been out of town for the trout, too. Sally, I think I'll call him now just to tell him how glad I am. He can't have left yet, can he?"

Her eyes were gay with the anticipation of at least hearing the adored one's voice again. She went into their bedroom to telephone.

"Tell the lady I am not at home," said Clifford.

Idols, even we must admit that Mr. Dudley is apart and beyond a fine actor. "Yeh, I know," cut in Sally impatiently, "I read it. Blah-blah!" "Oh, Sally," reproached Marie. The light faded from her eyes as she continued thoughtfully: "He hasn't called me in—more than a week, not even to say hello. But, of course, I know he's been busy and he's been out of town for the trout, too. Sally, I think I'll call him now just to tell him how glad I am. He can't have left yet, can he?"

Her eyes were gay with the anticipation of at least hearing the adored one's voice again. She went into their bedroom to telephone.

At this moment Clifford, too, was eating his dinner in his interior decorated bachelor apartment not so far away. He happened to be eating there because he had a theory that it was good publicity to be known as a serious artist, who, in preparation for an anxious evening at the theatre, took his dinner in solitary confinement. Indeed, in interviews he often said that he ate practically nothing before the show. Not being able to read English, his Japanese valet, however, always served a full course meal.

This valet was in the kitchen, waiting for the summoning tinkle of his master's bell. The telephone had been moved close to Clifford's elbow. All day long it had been ringing with congratulatory messages, and Clifford did not want to lose a message if he could help it.

It rang again. With an anticipatory smile he put down his dessert spoon. He lifted the receiver, immediately a trown of annoyance ruffled the sleekness of his forehead. A small, eager voice, palpitating a little over the syllables, said to him:

"May I speak to Mr. Clifford Dudley, please?"

Out in the kitchen the valet jumped at the sharp summons of the bell.

"Tell the lady I am not at home," said Clifford with his hand over the receiver, and went back to his meal.

Obediently the Jap took up the receiver and impassive to the breathless, "Hello! Hello! Hello! Is that you, Clifford?" that sang in his ears he made his pat reply:

"Meester Dudley—he no in."

"But I thought I heard his voice," cried Marie in sharp disappointment.

The Jap repeated patiently, "Meester Dudley, he no in."

The voice came lower now, with a last lingering hope.

"Will you tell him I called?" Miss Downey?

"I tell him," said the Jap coldly. He hung up and betook him silently to the kitchen.

"Oh, dear, I don't think that Jap ever repeats messages," sighed Marie to Sally.

"I'll bet he don't," said Sally tartly. On an impulse, she added:

"Look here, why are you so sure Clifford isn't stalling you? He's a big cat, that's what he is, and if I were you, I'd make it hot for him. I'd sue him, that's what I'd do, if only for the fun of it. And you might get some money, who knows, you're such an innocent little thing. Anybody'd believe you."

For the first time since Sally had known her, Marie lost her temper. A transformed girl with thin lips and raging eyes, she stamped her foot.

"I know you have no use for Clifford," cried Marie passionately. "But I—I love him, and I believe in him! I wouldn't do a thing to hurt a hair of his head, and if he asks me to break our engagement, I will. But—but he hasn't!" she concluded triumphantly.

"Oh, cool off," said Sally wearily. "He's a swell guy and a prince, and you're a little country girl used to lots of air and he's giving it to you. What's the use? Don't be a fool, Marie. Get into your things. We'll be late."

They walked in deep silence to the theatre, a silence thoughtful on Sally's part, writhed on Marie's. For Sally's words had not failed to penetrate and coincide with a stifled intuition of Marie's. Clifford was certainly not acting the part of the accepted lover, as it was acted, say, in Winesville, as John would—had acted it. Marie remembered with a twinge of her heart the daily telephone call, the daily after-dinner visit, the hastening footsteps of John when he met her by chance on the street, his apprehension of changed moods. But of course Clifford was different. At once, her pride and her infatuation jumped to the rescue. She recalled little incidents. He had called her up once at midnight to her great surprise and great happiness. He had spoken to her softly and sweetly on the phone, although Sally, who had called her, had sniffed, "He's stewed to the gills." And only the other day he had reassured her, that of course he loved her. But she remembered that it had been she, it was always she, who precipitated the answer. He had come up to her apartment, was it once, no twice, of his own free will (but, to be sure, she had telephoned him steadily for several days before, at his manager's office, at his home, and everywhere, and she had left her name). He had even taken her to dinner once or twice, glamorous occasions, even if the setting was a table-d'hôte in a side street. That might be, she had explained to herself, because she had no clothes fit to appear in by the side of a famous actor at a more elegant place. Perhaps if she had an evening dress—if the show only ran a few weeks more, she might manage to buy an evening dress.

"Wake up," said Sally tartly.

They had passed through the stage door. Here their ways separated. Sally, as a minor principal, had a semi-private dressing room. Marie went on to the not too-large room, where in an over-hot, over-bright atmosphere, in a mingled smell of various perfumes, of cheap cigarettes, of grease paint, of burnt black stuff for eyebrows, in a jumble of fluffy costumes and their own too-modish discarded street costumes, the chorus girls dressed.

As usual, Marie blinked for a second in the glare of the electric lights, strung over the unbleached muslin-covered tables. She never got over her surprise at its litter, at the theatrical pictures pasted on the wall, at the girls parading casually about in thin silk underwear, and not too much of it, at the cigarettes stuck in their mouths, and squashed on the table, on the ends of chairs. She had no friends in this room. It was a cheap revue, and the chorus girls were tawdry imitations of the sleek, young, polished creatures in the big revues.

It was not too early. All the girls were already in standing about in their underwear, some in sleazy wrappers, getting their make-up and chatting between whiles.

Prince of Wales Travels As Earl

ROBERT J. PREW (By Universal Service)

LONDON, April 15.—The Prince of Wales, who is now in the United States, is expected to visit the United States today.

He is leaving for Biarritz and had to acknowledge the salutes of crowds of thousands who rejoiced at his recovery from his recent operation on his ear.

The Prince travels as the Earl of Chester, which absorbs the public authorities from the duty of extending him an official welcome at Calais, Paris, or Biarritz. He is merely "Your Lordship" or "sir" to whomsoever wishes to address him in the course of his recuperation in the sunshine of southwest of France.

Tales of Troubadours

"FAMINE, pestilence and war do less evil upon the earth than the love of women," announced Marcarun, one of the early troubadours who was attached to the court of Richard Coeur de Lion and later to the court of Alfonso II of Aragon in the year 1167.

Notwithstanding the fact that he seems to have been one of the earliest poetic believers in the doctrine of "treat 'em rough" he was immensely popular with women. He was also a reformer both in politics and in the art of poetry. His poetry on the subject of love was original and complicated but through it all he posed as a woman hater and towards the close of a long career he announced in one of his poems, "I never loved and I was never loved."

He was a merciless satirist of princes and potentates with whose policies he disagreed and he was the subject of keen hatred by many of them and was frequently attacked. At one phase of his stormy life he went on the crusades to the Holy Land with Richard Coeur de Lion.

History is somewhat in doubt as to how his career ended and one story says that he was murdered by Castellane of Guienne, who had been the victim of his "poisoned pen." The closing years of his life are as much shrouded in mystery as his birth. He was left as a foundling on the doorstep of a rich man in Gascony and none knew anything about his descent, though there were rumors that he was of noble blood. He left about forty poems and was regarded as the master of the school of troubadours of that time who were severely classical in their methods of writing and composition.

Richmond Tennis Club to Visit Crockett Games

The Richmond Tennis club will journey to Crockett on Sunday night to present one of the most novel tennis matches that has been viewed in the Bay Region for years. The games at Crockett will be at night with hundreds of lamps illuminating the scenes of the play.

Helen Jacobs and Andrew Burke, who put up such a wonderful match here last week, will be on the program. "Snipes" Jamieson of this city, who was defeated by Elliot Marshall, the sensational eleven year old juvenile player of the Berkeley Tennis club will again stage a match that is expected to draw a large crowd.

L. S. Fish, who tied A. K. Herman for the city championship, will go up against Andrew Burke who will be Miss Jacobs' opponent. Fish is a member of the University of California varsity team, so that a match that will have plenty of pep can be expected.

All members of the Richmond club are expected to turn out for the event and several hundred Contra Costa fans are expected to view the novel night matches. Plans for the defensive city championship matches are expected to be made at a meeting of the tennis club on Wednesday night. The program of play for the night will be:

Junior Girls Doubles: Opal Wilson of Richmond and Florence Lemkuhl, of Pinole, vs. Ruth Sample, Pinole and Hazel Eich, Pinole. Ruth Heshol, umpire.

Womens doubles: Helen Thayer and Hazel Olsen vs. Helen Gately and Phyllis Carlson, all of Richmond. Ruth Heshol, umpire.

Main event: Helen Jacobs, Junior national champion vs. Andrew Burke of the varsity team of the University of California. A. S. Remell, umpire.

Mens doubles: A. S. Remell and Bill Regalia vs. Nebo Chasseur and George Olsen, all of Richmond. Chet Roberts, umpire.

Mens Singles: L. S. Fish (Stanford), Richmond, vs. Andrew Burke, (California), Berkeley. A. S. Remell, umpire.

PAOLO WINS IN FRESNO RACES

(By Universal Service)
FRESNO, April 15.—Peter D. Paolo, last year's champion, won the fifty mile race and Earl Cooper won the twenty-five mile sprint the main attraction of the afternoon of Fresno Italian day festival. The time for the fifty mile was 29 minutes and 4 seconds; 25 miles won by Cooper was 14 minutes, 25 seconds.

Charge Made Against Col. Is Boomerang

cerning the ultimate outcome of the charges.

He admitted he had warned the young officers that unless they "came clean" they would likely find themselves in difficulties. It was even mentioned that all of the officers who have testified may have perjured themselves before the court martial board.

When the Marine fire brand left the stand after undergoing a hectic hour of questioning by Admiral Washington and a vicious cross fire by Captain Cates of the defense counsel, he was pale and shaken.

At times he almost leaped from the witness chair and shouted his answers in a hoarse and strained voice. His sentences ran into a jumble of words and thoughts and the range of his testimony drew several sharp rebukes from the court.

Following Gen. Butler's temporary dismissal from the witness stand, Col. F. D. Kilgore, his chief of staff, was summoned by Admiral Washington to tell what he knew concerning the charges of duress.

The colonel stuck by his commander's guns and gave it as his opinion no pressure had been exerted in obtaining the statements against Col. Williams. He admitted, however, that Gen. Butler had made threats of "trouble" unless the young "cocktail party" officers told the truth.

Three other officers were subsequently called by the court before the day's session terminated. Tomorrow more witnesses will appear before the court martial board. It now seems that the "Butler duress" affair will supercede the "Williams Cocktail" in public and military interest.

It is anticipated that the recalling of witnesses may prolong the case for several days.

The center of a threatening storm appears to hinge about Gen. Butler, Captain C. B. Cates a prosecution witness and a defense council and Captain George Stokes who originally brought the suggestion of "duress" before the court.

Captain Cates was called to the stand this afternoon with Second Lieut. Beverly Roberts and F. M. Wilburn, all of whom had made statements to General Butler. It is expected that when the court reconvenes tomorrow, Captain Stokes will be called upon to elaborate his original testimony.

A vigorous denial was made by Captain Cates that he had made an oral statement to General Butler that Col. Williams was drunk. The officer insisted his words to the general were drunk or sick.

Lieut. Roberts timidly said he didn't believe he felt any duress as the result of the general's remarks.

Lieut. Wilburn testified that he felt he was under duress "at first". This feeling he said vanished when he spoke to another officer regarding the interpretation of the general's "come clean" instruction.

Suspect in Check Case is Turned Over To Superior Court

Preliminary hearing of the case of Joe Dierco, charged with passing fictitious checks, was held before Justice of the Peace John Roth yesterday morning. Dierco, who is believed to have also used the aliases of Antonio Rimana, Antione De Mena and Frank A. Varma, is charged with passing three checks totaling $196.81 on three Richmond merchants. He told the authorities that the checks were written by a friend of his, whose name he would not divulge and given to him to cash.

He was bound over to the Superior Court in Martinez and his bail fixed at $1,000. Unable to furnish bail, he was remanded to the county jail. As his checks totaled less than $200, his charge is a misdemeanor.

Dierco is said to be wanted on a similar charge in Alameda county and there is a warrant for his arrest signed by the San Jose authorities who claim he is wanted on a felony charge there.

"Drys" May Try To Oust Andrews

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, April 15.—Aroused by his admission that government supervised sale of beer for home consumption would aid dry law enforcement, heads of the Anti-Saloon League will meet tomorrow to determine whether or not they will seek removal of General Lincoln C. Andrews as director of Federal enforcement activities, it was learned tonight.

Meanwhile, deluged with protests from individual "drys" for shadowing a fight upon him, General Andrews issued a statement declaring that his testimony before the Senate hearing yesterday did not advocate any change in the Volstead law.

Soviet Paper Has Circulation of Over a Million

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, April 15.—The Peasant Gazette, an agricultural weekly started two years ago, is the first periodical in Russia to reach a circulation of over a million copies, according to a bulletin from Moscow to the Russian information bureau.

In March, 1924, it had 160,000 subscribers; in March, 1925, 600,000; in March this year 1,015,000. In its two years the Gazette has muckraked 1685 village Soviets which it regarded as not properly representing the local Peasants. It has 5637 village correspondents.

"Have a Camel"
Here is mild and mellow goodness that completely satisfies the taste

HIGH prices don't satisfy the taste. Or fancy names. Or wrappings. But Camels bring complete smoking enjoyment to ever-increasing millions of smokers. Why?

Because of Camel quality. Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos nature grows. Choicest Turkish and Domestic, expertly blended to bring you all of their goodness. We put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are the world-renowned product of the largest tobacco organization on earth.

And remember this: No expense is spared to make Camels the finest of all cigarettes, regardless of price.

If you want the smoothest, mellow-mildest cigarette you ever put a match to—one entirely free from cigarettey after-taste—just try Camels. Compare them with any other cigarette. Our promise is—you just can't smoke enough Camels to tire the taste. But you'll get such mild and mellow goodness as you never hoped to find.

Have a Camel!

HEEDED MOTHER'S ADVICE

Oakland, Cal. Feb. 28, 1926.
For more than a year I suffered from hemorrhage from a tumor. During this time I was treated by several physicians, all of whom agreed that an operation was the only thing that could help me. Neither my husband nor I liked the idea of the knife.
Upon the advice of my mother who, after having an operation on the right side, the wound forming a fistula which had never healed for 14 years, had found complete relief and health by drinking the Fong Wan Herbs, I decided to try them. Owing to my terrible condition and my extremely poor health, it took about six months before I was entirely well. I am now in splendid health and my old trouble has been completely vanquished.
I formerly lived at 1805 Howard street, San Francisco, but have recently removed to Oakland. My phone number is Market 8659.

Gall Bladder Troubles Gone!
To Whom It May Concern:
For over a year I had trouble in my gall bladder, pain on my right side, vomiting and a general rundown condition. On February 23rd of this year I had an attack of appendicitis, the pain of which was so severe that I could not sleep at night. I came to see the Chew & Chew herbals and after taking one dose of herbs I was greatly relieved. I continued to take the herbs for a few more weeks and I am all well now. March 14, 1926.

Young Evangelists Agree That Moderns "Are All Wrong"

(By Universal Service)
KANSAS CITY, April 15.—The two youngest preachers in the world, the Rev. Uldine Maybelle Utley, 14, and the Rev. Paul Fountain, 12, do not hold with the moderns. The two child evangelists meeting here today for the first time compared creeds and came to a perfect agreement in upholding all the features of the old fashioned religion.

Paul, whose home is at 1507 Springs, Arkansas, is here conducting a meeting. Uldine, who lives at Fresno, California, is on her way to Indianapolis to begin a revival campaign.

Both outlined their creeds as follows:

"We do not believe man is descended from a monkey.

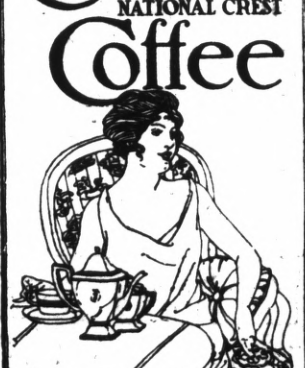

"We believe the whole swallowed Jonah, and that Daniel was in the lions den.

"We think most sin originates in dance halls.

"We are opposed to rouge and the use of cosmetics."

Both children are emphatic in insisting that rouge and powder are sinful and that shows and other diversions of modern youths are sinful.

Chinese Strife Kept Alive by Monarchists

and the Conservatives who believe in monarchy and the preservation of the old order.

It has become a convenient habit to speak of the "unchanging Chinese," and therefore instantly to dismiss as unfounded any claim of changes having taken place. The Missionary schools established by the Catholic and Protestant churches initiated the growth of modern ideas in China. For a long period of years, even prior to the revolution of 1911, these schools turned out thousands of young Chinese with some understanding of Western modernism. To these were gradually added a constantly increasing number of young Chinese of both sexes educated in Europe or America.

The return by the United States of the Boxer war indemnity to China, to be used for educational purposes brought numbers of young Chinese to this country. The foreign educated Chinese, in addition to their book knowledge, obtained actual experience in the advantages of the materialistic side of western civilization. They also saw the greater efficiency resulting from honest government administered by honest officials. They saw the greater justice gotten from courts presided over by honest judges making decisions and in accordance with a well defined code of law. They saw that no western nation would submit to any violation of its sovereignty; such as the foreign occupation of seaports, the foreign navigation of rivers, the exemption of foreigners from trial by the courts and the stationing of foreign troops in the capital.

Upon returning to China, the contrast inevitably made them discontented. They could not help but see that the first step necessary was reform within China. The Manchu monarchy, with its Manchu governors and troops, stationed throughout China were still considered foreigners, though hundreds of years had passed since they conquered the country. The returned students having absorbed Liberal and democratic ideas abroad were against any form of monarchy. As a result, the first Liberal and democratic party ever seen in China came into existence. It was called the Tung-Meng Jui, which means alliance party. It was led by Doctor Sun Yat Sen. The year after the successful revolution of 1911, this party was reorganized and took the name of Kuo-Mi-Tang, or Nationalist party. It is still in existence.

It is today as it has been from the beginning, a believer in and worker for a United Republic China, strong enough to protect itself against foreign aggression and determine to recover China's lost sovereign rights. As it has not hesitated when it could obtain them nowhere else, to get arms, ammunition and military instructions from Russia, it is accused by its enemies of desiring to Bolshevize China. It has never preached Communism, nor Sovietism, nor established either when in control, as in Canton and the surrounding country.

In 1913, the then president, Yuan-Shi-Kai dissolved parliament as the first step in his plan to make himself emperor of China. He persecuted the Kuo-Min Tang, but was unable to destroy it. Yuan Shi Kai was a henchman of China's great statesman, Li-Hung-Chang still remembered in this country because of his witty comments made during his visit here. Li-Hung-Chang had a group of supporters called the Pei-Yang. After his death Yuan-Shi-Kai became the leader of this group, which was enlarged into a party when Yuan-Shi-Kai became president of China. The two great rival parties thus were the Kuo-Min Tang, Republican and Liberal and the Pei-Yang monarchal and Conservatives.

Yuan-Shi-Kai died shortly after his attempt to make himself emperor. It is generally believed he was poisoned. Upon his death, his party, the Pei-Yang, split into two groups: the Chih party, led by Marshall Tsao un and the Fengtien party led by the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso-Lin. At this time, the present marshal, Wu-Pei-Fu was a subordinate of Marshall Tsao Kun and the present Christian Marshall Feng was a subordinate of Wu-Pei-Fu. Incidentally, the Manchurian warlord, Chang Tso-Lin is related to Marshall Tsao Kun by marriage. Hence the present desire of Marshalls Chang and Wu to release Tsao-Kun from the confinement in which he was placed by the Christian Marshall Feng. Feng was always a serious individual, interested only in training his troops and trying to better the condition of the poorer Chinese, the class from which he came. As he advanced in rank, he saw more and more clearly the need for internal reform within China and to restore her sovereign rights.

This attracted him to the Kuo-

CANNIBALS ARE "JUST FOLKS" SAYS EXPLORER

(By Universal Service)

CHICAGO, April 15.—Cannibals are just folks who haven't any objection to eating human flesh. This was the statement brought to Chicago today by Mrs. Mary Hastings Bradley, who with her husband have just returned from an African expedition.

She said: "My experiences in Africa have convinced me that cannibals aren't much more likely to attack us whites than we whites are likely to attack cows in the street.

"In fact cannibals are very likeable, jolly, friendly folk—when they're not otherwise.

"In the first place we forestalled trouble by feeding them elephants and buffaloes. They had been famished for meat and obviously it is wise to keep cannibals well fed. Then of course we had a great deal of protection.

"The safest way is to feed cannibals with some other kind of meat and then they won't bother you."

Arguments of Wets Before the Senate Group Finished upon neighbors' such as had been done in the past.

Representative Nathan D. Pearlman of New York testified that the charity dances and other social functions held by the orderly settlement houses in New York are now marked by the universal presence of the hip-flask, with the consequent lowering of the morals of both boys and girls.

Law Enforcement has absolutely broken down in and around Boston, Representative John J. Douglas declared. Bootleggers are paying graft to "higher ups" both in the criminal and official world while juries refuse to convict, so general is the disgust with the Volstead Act he said.

Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland declared that on the court decision resulting from his arrest and trial for brewing cider and wine in his home, Congress could legally increase the alcoholic content to 11.68 percent "in ten minutes, if it were so disposed."

Despite the protest of Senator Harrell, a dry, that the procedure of the hearings had evidently been arranged to harm the dry cause, decision was made to let the prohibitionists present their case tomorrow. The wets will probably be given an additional day to argue against the evidence now before the committee.

"Violence and murder by agents of the government are becoming almost daily occurrences in Pittsburgh, I am sorry to say," President Church told the committee.

"Yesterday, as I was preparing my statement for this committee, an officer fired upon a man presumed to be a bootlegger. The bullet went wild and killed a seventeen-year-old innocent boy.

"We have 6,000 students, the University of Pennsylvania nearby has 10,000 and the Catholic University, not far away, several thousand more. Prohibition administrator Baird has urged that the students there to spy upon their associates, to become informers. These agents are infected by the spirit of bigotry which has seemed to settle upon all enforcement officers as the result of this law passed by Mr. Wayne L. Wheeler and his associates."

"You think they are fanatics?" asked Senator Harrell.

"I think there are fanatics on both sides," said President Church. "I agree heartily with you," said Senator Harrell.

"But those on the wet side," interjected Senator Reed, "do not wear the badge of officialdom."

"The conditions are very much worse socially than before prohibition," President Church resumed. "In olden times, liquor was not noticeable at student functions. Now the hip-flask is always present. Temptation is now much more general than then."

"Before prohibition, the boy with liquor on his breath lost caste, didn't he?" Reed asked.

"To dance with them," said President Church. "Now it is one of the customs of the day. The girl doesn't refuse him."

Callan, who is also a member of the Maryland Legislature, said that destruction of property caused by moonshining and bootlegging is one of the serious problems faced by Baltimore realtors.

Three Cars Are Damaged in Crash

Three cars were damaged last night in an accident on Macdonald avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets. J.W. Lincoln, was backing out from the curb on the north side of Macdonald avenue when his car was struck by a machine driven by R. Gracie, 245 Eighteenth street. Lincoln's car was forced to the curb where it struck a car owned by C. E. Clark, 600 Thirty-seventh street. The three cars were slightly damaged but no one was injured.

Min Tang or Nationalists party. As a result he has worked in conjunction with that party since he abandoned Wu-Pei-Fu and became an independent leader.

Thus, the fighting around Peking today is a continuation of the old struggle between the Liberal Republicans, followers of the Kuo-Min Tang, and the Conservative and monarchial, Chih and Fengtien groups for the time being forgetting their rivalries and remembering that at one time they were united in the Pre-Yang party.

Body of Negro Found In Bay Is Identified

The body of the negro washed ashore at the foot of Thirtieth street Wednesday morning was positively identified as that of Walter Beacher of Springfield, Mass., by Dr. G. C. Coleman colored Baptist Minister of Thirty-second and Linden streets Oakland, yesterday.

According to Dr. Coleman who is well known in this city having appeared before church organizations a number of times Beacher came to Oakland about two months ago and was rooming at the Coleman home. On Easter Sunday morning the last time Dr. Coleman saw Beacher he was sitting on the front step of the Coleman home dressed in the garb in which the body was found Wednesday morning. Dr. Coleman invited Beacher to attend Sunday school with him but Beacher refused stating that he would come along to church later. Dr. Coleman told deputy coroner Aubrey Wilson that was the last he saw of Beacher.

A letter which Beacher left in his room at the Coleman home establishes the case as a clear case of suicide according to the authorities. In the letter addressed to his former landlady a Mrs. Sapemter, Beacher asks forgiveness for the "act which he is about to do," and states that he is sorry that he is not able to "pay her the money which he owes her." An inquiry into the death will probably be held on next Tuesday night.

Mrs. Christian Meyer of San Francisco has sold her home at 1320 Barrett avenue to B. Jensen of Pont Richmond. The deal was handled through the A. L. Paulsen Realty service.

ANOTHER MOLE CRASH VICTIM GETS DAMAGES

Leater Miller, 19, of Oakland who was injured in the Key Route train crash December 4, 1924, was awarded damages amounting to $50,000 yesterday against the Key Route and the San Francisco-Sacramento railroad companies.

This is the second case decided against the companies as the result of the collision. Mrs. Olga Howe of Oakland whose legs were cut off in the accident received $125,000 in the first suit against the two companies.

Attorneys believe that damages against the companies will run in excess of a million dollars when the other cases now pending are heard.

Nine persons lost their lives and approximately sixty others received serious injuries in the crash. Miller who sued for $100,000, sustained two broken ribs and a crushed foot in the wreck.

The San Francisco-Sacramento Short Line claims that Key Route was responsible for the crash as all trains on the fill are under the supervision of the Key Company. The latter company claims that the fault was due to a motorman of the Sacramento line.

CALWA C. INCORPORATES

The Calwa company filed articles of incorporation in Martinez yesterday. The company, which is capitalized at $1,000,000, will take over the properties of the California Wine association.

L. A. Salt Lake Air Mail is to Be Inaugurated

(By Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, April 15.—The first air mail service connecting Los Angeles direct with eastern points will go into operation between this city and Salt Lake Saturday. Seven hours and fifteen minutes has been fixed as the flying time for the 660 miles between the two cities with an intermediate stop at Los Vegas, Nevada.

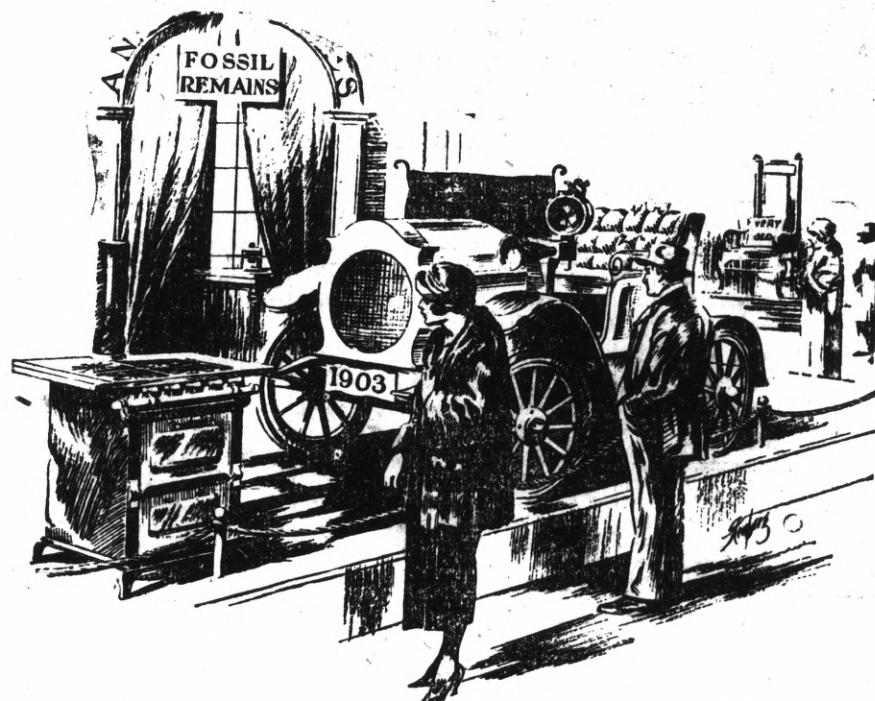

Wood Family Attempts to Recover Estate

(By Universal Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—Filing of two suits in the superior court today opened the fight of Mrs. Mary B. Wood, to recover at least a part of the $400,000 family fortune said to have been lost by her son, Baldwin Wood through stock speculation and unwise investments.

Wood disappeared from his hotel two weeks ago and the following day it was discovered that the $200,000 estate left by his father and a like sum belonging to his mother-in-law and his sister, over which he held power of attorney, had been dissipated.

The two suits filed today are identical—to recover to the Wood estate a parcel of real estate in San Francisco, which Wood sold illegally without sufficient authority. The actions are known as "quiet title" suits, asking the court to declare title to the property vested in Mrs. Wood and not in the person to whom Baldwin Wood made the sale.
